Subject: NTIA Internet Policy Agenda

As part of our continuing review of Federal regulatory programs we are of the opinion that NTIA should be publicly involved in the growing controversy as to whether social media should be regulated. We understand fully that such an involvement requires the participation not only of Executive Branch agencies but also that of the FTC and the FCC.

In order to provide you with our current views on this topic we have developed a website dedicated to this issue at <http://thecre.com/RegSM/>. We continually update the website as we do all of our Interactive Public Dockets available for use by Federal regulators. All of the information presented in the said docket has been made available to the public and the public has been given the opportunity to express their views to CRE.

Hopefully you will address this matter at your earliest convenience.
